WHAT IS A TRUST?

By Debra K. Schuster, J.D, M.H.A.

Last month's column explained what probate is and what Wills do and do not do, and this month I want to discuss trusts.

There is a lot of mystery surrounding trusts – often, people think that only very wealthy people have trusts. This is not true, but is it also not true that everyone needs a trust.

Trusts can serve different purposes, but it is important to understand what a trust is and how it works.

Like a Will, a trust is a written document that allows the person creating it – the Grantor or Settlor - to identify: 1) who they want to handle the assets held in the trust when the Grantor is unable to handle their own finances (the Trustee), and 2) after the Grantor dies, how the Trustee is to distribute or handle the assets in the trust.

Think of a trust as a bucket into which all of one's assets that can have beneficiary designations made – cars, homes, other real estate, bank accounts, CDs, stocks, life insurance, investment accounts – can be placed. One of the biggest mistakes I see is the time and expense someone puts into creating a trust, but then they do not fund it. In the same way you must have beneficiary designations on all of your assets if you have a Will (that identifies the people you want specific assets to be distributed to after your death). Someone who creates a trust must title into their trust all of the assets they want to be held in their trust so those assets will be handled according to the instructions in their trust. So, if you have a bank account you want to be held in your trust, you would take your trust (actually a summary of your trust called a Certificate of Trust) to your bank and have your accounts, which if a checking account, will re-title your checks as follows: "Jane Doe, Trustee, Jane Doe RLT dtd 10/15/15", which means that Jane Doe is the trustee of her own Revocable Living Trust (RLT) that was signed on 10/15/15. Financial institutions may have somewhat different ways of titling accounts in to a trust, but this is the most common way of doing so.

So why have a trust? It keeps all of the assets you title in the name of your trust in the trust "bucket" you have created, which not only keeps all assets in the trust out of probate, but gives you the flexibility of deciding how you want your assets managed after you die. Your trust can instruct your trustee to give your beneficiaries their share of the trust immediately after you die or if you have young children, grandchildren or other beneficiaries with special needs, you can provide specific instructions for how you want the assets handled for those beneficiaries. A trust allows you to handle your own funds while you are perfectly capable of doing so, as you normally do, but if you become incapacitated and die, your Trustee will then step in to pay your bills and handle your assets per the instructions in your trust.

For example, if you have minor children and you die when they are younger than an age at which you want them to inherit the amount of money you have left to them, you can instruct your trustee to only use income from the trust for your children's needs – even if they are over the age of 18. You can delay distribution of the assets in your trust to your beneficiaries until whatever ages or circumstances (such as graduating from college) you specify. You can (and should) give your trustee the discretion to be able to use trust funds in an emergency, but these are all issues you need to consider and discuss with a lawyer.

There are many different types of trusts that are created for different reasons – trusts that are designed for a disabled person to be able to qualify for needed public benefits while having a trustee that can hold assets on their behalf that are not countable by public benefit programs; trusts that are created to minimize tax, trusts for a person that is unable to responsibly manage their own money or who may have a gambling or substance abuse problem; trusts that are created to preserve assets for grandchildren. The creative uses and private nature of trusts are very appealing to people. My next column will explain in greater detail what certain types of trusts are and how they can truly help people beyond just keeping assets out of probate and minimizing taxes. Stay tuned next month!

GET INVOLVED IN SPARK!

Spark! provides high school students in the Parkway School District with dynamic, immersion-based student learning experiences to ensure students can understand and respond to an ever-changing world. To accomplish this task, the Parkway School District actively engages and works collaboratively with business partners, community service and educational leaders to design and develop mutually beneficial learning experiences based on the interests of students and stakeholders.

Learning at Spark! is real-time, real-world and hands-on, propelling students into high demand/high skill workforce areas like Education, Healthcare, Technology and Entrepreneurship. The program is grounded in profession-based learning relying heavily on strong partnerships with business, industry and post-secondary institutions. Emphasis is placed on developing professional and ethical skills which employers deem highly important to career success, such as project management, time management, teamwork, and creativity, as well as empathy, communication and community activism.

Spark! Areas of Distinctiveness:

- Students are able to pursue a personal direction based on an understanding of their talents and interests while accessing a frequently iterated curriculum shaped by industry partners based on the latest industry trends
- Students have the opportunity to transfer their learning to new situations beyond the classroom and school
- Students are supported by a robust network of business and community partners
- Students learn at off-site, authentic workspaces during school hours for academic credit
- Students have the opportunity to become immersed in a career pathway experience which fully prepares them for their education to employment journey
- Students co-create their Spark! experiences with feedback from peers and mentors
- Spark! is open to all high school juniors and seniors who are on track to graduate

Spark! is driven by the evolving needs of our global community, therefore instructors, business and community partners work collaboratively to develop all course curriculum - constantly adapting to follow community and industry trends and changes. Courses are offered for 5-7 hours a week on a yearly basis. Courses result in high school and college credit. Students and instructors are co-located in off-site, authentic workspaces thanks to the Spark! business and community partners. The following Spark! experiences are being offered during the 2015-16 school year: Incubator, Pre-Professional Health Sciences Academy, Teaching & Learning, and Technology Solutions. Spark! is excited to offer Bioscience and Engineering beginning in Fall 2016. For more information about Spark!, please visit: www.parkwayspark.com or follow it on Twitter @parkwayspark.

COMPREHENSIVE PAIN SPECIALISTS

Comprehensive Pain Specialists is under the experienced leadership of Dr. Mark Snyder, Physician Assistant Allison Modglin and Nurse Practitioner Aleksandr Shoykhet. Its providers and staff are devoted to helping patients accurately identify and manage chronic pain so patients can regain their lives. By combining traditional and advanced pain-management techniques, CPS strives to provide effective and compassionate pain management for a broad range of and pain related conditions and disorders.

Services include therapeutic and diagnostic injections, medication management, lab services, bracing, and other durable medical equipment. CPS assists patients with short-term needs as well as those seeking a more permanent pain management solution. Skilled providers evaluate each patient individually to support an overall health and wellness approach, which may include referrals for physical therapy, a diet and nutrition plan, or a mental wellness program.

Comprehensive Pain Specialists was founded in 2005 in the state of Tennessee and has since grown into the leading pain management facility in the country.

CPS is located at 555 N. New Ballas Rd., Ste. 165. For more information please call 314-303-0737 or visit the website at www.CPSpain.com.

NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL

Northwestern Mutual spent more than $1 million to move its downtown office and 100 employees to Creve Coeur. It moved in mid-July to 25,000 square feet on the fourth floor of Creve Coeur Center IV at 622 Emerson Road. Northwestern Mutual has 46,000 policy holders in the St. Louis region who own a total of more than $20 billion of death benefits with $2.1 billion of cash value.

"Downtown is great, but it makes more sense for us to be in Creve Coeur," Gerard Hempstead, managing partner, said earlier this year. "The reasons: The office design will be more efficient; most of the agency's clients and representatives live closer to Creve Coeur; recruiting is more attractive there for prospective financial representatives; and the amenities, such as free parking, are more attractive."

"The financial planning process has changed over the last 10 years," Hempstead said. "We used to meet with just one spouse. Now we like both present for meetings in our office. An office in Creve Coeur is more convenient than meeting clients in a Starbucks in West County."

Gerard Hempstead may be reached at 314-231-3931.

LAST CALL FOR 2016 DIRECTORY

The 2016 Directory will include each chamber's member in three listings – by company name, representative name and business category. Members will be given one FREE six-line category listing which consists of company name, primary contact person, address, city/state/zip, phone number and website address. The format is a 5 1/2" x 8 1/2" buzz-book style directory, and members may purchase enhanced listings, additional listings and ads. Ads and listings due by November 30.

MEMBERSHIP LUNCHEON PACKETS $10

Bring enough copies of your printed 8 1/2" X 11" marketing flyer to the chamber office the Monday before the meeting and it will be collated for distribution at the membership luncheon.
